To whom it may concern,

Testimonial for Pearly Lin Lee Ying

Pearly was a Data/Software Engineer intern in the National Youth Council (NYC)'s Transformation Office from 18 September 2023 to 3 May 2024.

As part of the team working on automation projects which aim to help NYC colleagues save man-hours on various tasks and improve work efficiency, Pearly demonstrated strong competencies in M Language, reviewing business processes and UiPath. She has played a pivotal role in the following projects:

- Designed and enhanced a query for NYC staff to manage FormSG responses. The query was able to pull and store any form responses dynamically and saved NYC 300 man-hours annually.
- Enhanced an attended bot for NYC Finance to process billing. Her work resolved various issues and ensured the operational stability of the bot.
- Designed and enhanced an attended bot for Global Office to file and update Grant Application Database. The enhancements allowed the bot to work with more scenarios and exceptions, ensuring the operational effectiveness of the bot.
- Collaborated and designed a comprehensive checklist outlining best practices for code review of UiPath bots. The code review checklist would allow NYC to ensure quality code standards for current and future bots.
- Optimized a query for staff to transform data for email marketing. Her work has reduced the runtime performance of the query and allowed the marketing team to continue processing thousands of data per month.
- Managed and led a project with Nanyang Polytechnic (NYP) to automate the creation of learning accounts for participants under the Global Office approved programs, resulting in an accelerated project commissioning due to her dedication and leadership.

Throughout her internship, Pearly has proven to be an excellent communicator who understood user needs and was able to share her ideas and solutions effectively. She was a critical thinker who went above and beyond the tasks assigned to her, to ensure that the programs she created could deliver the best outcomes. Pearly was patient, and often rendered assistance to colleagues by guiding them and debugging their bots and codes. She was well-liked by colleagues and all who had interacted with her could see that she had a positive learning attitude. Her resourcefulness in learning various automation applications on her own without any supervision showed great willingness to adapt to changes.

Pearly's drive and enthusiasm were commendable, and I believe she would be a great asset wherever she chooses to go and succeed in her future endeavours.

Sincerely,
